ABOUT

Hi, I'm Hugo, a 30 y/o, black cis man, living Guarulhos, São Paulo - Brazil, graduated graphic and product designer, branding consultant now transitioning to technology.

I've always had some sort of connection with technology, from an early age I liked tinkering and experimenting, I even won gold medals (two) on a national computing competition (OBI), but when it came the time to choose I ended up choosing the design path. And even in that area technology was always present, some new software, a script that would automate a task, etc.

So this year I "gave in" and started studying to become a Full Stack Web Developer at Kenzie Academy Brasil, where I I've learned about Front End development and project versioning , and am learning about Back End development.

And in parallel studying in other courses to learn programming languages that we won't see there, like Go (Golang), concepts like TDD (test driven development), and more about algorithms and data structures.
